Sowing a future where all people have a home

Giving Up Isn’t An Option

Lacretia loves her job, she had great rental history, and she can’t wait to get back into school to finish her degree and become a kindergarten teacher. She’s doing everything right, but because there aren’t enough apartments to rent, she is forced to stay in shelter with her three children—ages eight, six, and four months—longer than anyone might expect. “Giving up isn’t an option,” she says. “But every day, my children ask me: ‘When do we get to go home?’ and it’s hard to have to say—again—‘Sorry, baby, not today.”

The Need for Affordable Housing

- There are only FOUR affordable homes in our communities for every TEN low-wage families looking for a place to live.
- 20,000 families experience homelessness each year in the Twin Cities metro area.
- Current investments by law makers would take 200 years to meet our affordable housing needs.

SEEDS of HOME is about changing the equation—growing Beacon’s ability to launch 100 new homes every year.

It takes $1.5 million to launch 100 new homes each year.

For every $15,000 you and others give to our Seeds of Home Fund, a seed is planted to organize and plan another new, affordable home in our community.

Together, we are sowing a new future of affordable homes.
